e-lesson

Week starting: June 28, 2010

1. The United States

This week's lesson is about the United States, which famously celebrates its national independence on the Fourth of July.

Level

Pre-intermediate and above (equivalent to CEF level A2–B1 and above)

How to use the lesson

1. Brainstorm on the subject of the United States.
2. Divide the students into pairs and give each pair a copy of Worksheet A. Give them a few minutes to read the text, looking up any new vocabulary, then ask them to fill in the blanks with the correct words from the box. This exercise introduces some of the vocabulary that appears on Worksheet B. Make it clear that there is only one possible word that can go in each blank, and that there are fifteen words in the box but only twelve gaps in the text, meaning that three of the words should not be used.
3. Check answers in open class.
4. Keeping the students in their pairs, hand out copies of Worksheet B, in which students have to match the numbers in the first column of the table with the items in the middle column. Point out that in some cases the numbers are approximate. Although Worksheet A provides a little help, in some cases students will probably have to take a guess.
5. Check answers in open class.
6. Keeping the students in their pairs, ask them to turn over their copies of Worksheets A and B or to temporarily hand them back to you. Then hand out Worksheet C and ask the students to complete Exercise 3, in which they have to look at fifteen sentences based on the content of Worksheets A and B, decide whether they have been written correctly, and then "bet" anything from ten to fifty points on their guesses. In the first column after the statements, they should write C (correct) or I (incorrect). In the second column, they should write the number of points they are willing to bet on their answer (ten points if they are forced to guess, going up to fifty if they are very confident about the answer). Note that most of the incorrect sentences only contain one mistake.
6. After the pairs have given their answers, it's time to score. Each pair calls out their answer and how many points they have bet. If they have answered correctly, students enter their points in the final column (Points won). If they have answered incorrectly, they should enter their points in the third column (Points lost). At the end, students subtract the total of the third column from the total of the fourth column to give the total number of points they have won. The pair with the most points wins.
